The prices will be $3, $2.50, $2, $1 and 50 cents.

"THE LITTLE MINISTER."

There is not a more charming and classic play now being presented than "The Little Minister." It is a dramatization of J. M. Barrie's famous novel, and is a play without a villain, without tears, without swords or pistols, and has a charm that makes it linger as a pleasant memory. The love story of "Lady Babbie" and the quaintly humorous characters of the village of Thurston—the twin charms of the book—are delightfully represented in the play.

"The Little Minister" will be presented by Mr. Charles Frohman's company of capable actors, which includes four members of the original cast, we are told. "The Little Minister" has played to large business since leaving New York, and the Grand will no doubt contain a large and fashionable audience to-night.

Miss Grace Heyer, who is said to be Mr. Frohman's youngest star, will play "Lady Babbie," and the other parts are well cast. Mr. Giles Shine, who was a Paris favorite before the Grand was built, is a member of the company.

Reserved seats are on sale at Boulevard's. Persons who fail to see "The Little Minister" will miss the prettiest play of the season.

"KEEP TO THE RIGHT."

"Keep to the right," is the law of the road—Make it a law of your moral code; In whatever you determine to do Follow the road of the Good and the True; Follow and fear not; by day and by night, Up hill or down hill, "keep to the right."

Doubt will assual you, temptation will woo— "Keep to the right," for the right is the true. Doubt is a traitor, temptation a shame; A heart that is honest, a life without blame. Will rank you far higher, in worth and renown, Than the grandest of kings, with his pomp and crown.

"Keep to the right," is the journey of life, There is crowding and jostling, trouble and strife. The weak will succumb to the bold and the strong, And many a leader and many a go wrong; He will acquit himself best in the fight, Who sticks not to his duty, and "keeps to the right."

"Keep to the right," and the Right will keep you In touch and accord with the Good and the True. These are the best things in life, after all, They make it worth living, whatever befall, And Death has no terrors, when he comes in sight, For the man who discriminates to "keep to the right." —Charles W. Humes, in Atlantic Constitution.

"Nita, if it were only for Mr. Latrobe I should not care a snap of my finger, but it's you—you! I thought you had more sense. I thought you fully understood that you couldn't afford to lose yourself a moment, and yet if ever a girl looked like yielding you did this very afternoon. For my sake, Nita, don't let it go any further—don't fall in love—here—whatever you do."

The younger sister stood at the dressing-table at the moment, her face averted. The Mary Powell was still rounding the point, and the mellow, melodious notes of her bell were still echoing through the Highlands. Nita was gazing out upon the gorgeous effect of sunset light and shadow on the eastern cliffs and crags across the Hudson, a flash as vivid as the colors of her cheeks, her lips quivering. She was making valiant efforts to control herself before replying.

"I'm not in love with him," she finally said.

"Perhaps not—yet. Surely I hope not, but it looks awfully like it was coming on Nita, you think, don't you? You're not to worry me; if I have to spend your money you and see you do it—and you know you can't do this minute—if you don't like."

The younger girl wheeled sharply, her face a flash of fire. "Paddy, you promised me I shouldn't have that hateful thing again—at least not until we left here—and you've broken your word twice. You—"

"It's because I must. I can't see you crying—the way I did when, with things have come so terrible sudden late. This time yesterday I was living your youth and—advantages, you can pick and choose. Oh, Paddy has money and money all over the west, and he was your shadow at the seashore, and all broken up, he told me so when we came here. Paddy Latrobe is a beautiful boy without a penny—"

"It's true," began Nita, feebly.

"His uncle had a sister to support Paddy's mother. His pay as brigadier in the regular service is only $5,000. He can't have saved much of anything in the past, and he may last a dozen years yet—or more. Even if he does leave everything then to Latrobe, what'll you do meantime? Don't be a fool, Nita, because I was, I had to be. It was that or nothing, and father was getting tired. You heard how he talked."

The younger sister was still at the dressing-table, diligently brushing her shining, curly tresses. She had regained her composure and took occasional furtive peeps at Mrs. Frank, now seated at the foot of the bed, busy with a buttonhook and the adjustment of a pair of very dainty boots of white kid, whose buttons gleamed like pearls. The mates to them, half a size smaller, peeped from the tray of Nita's new trunk.

There came a footstep and a rap at the door. "See what it is, Nita, there's a love—I don't want to hop."

It was a card—a new arrival at the hotel.

"Gentleman said he'd wait in the parlor, m." said the bellboy, and vanished. Nita glanced at the card and instantly trouble stood in her paling face. Silently Mrs. Garrison held out her hand, took the card, and one quick look. The buttonhook dropped from her relaxed fingers. The card read: "Mr. Gouverneur Prime."

For a second or two the sisters gazed at each other in silence.

At last the elder spoke. "In heaven's name, what brings that absurd boy back here? I thought him safe in Europe."

CHAPTER IX.

One of the most charming writers of our day and generation has declared that "the truest blessing a girl can have" is "the ingenuous devotion of a young boy's heart." Nine mothers in ten will probably take issue with the gifted author on that point, and though no longer a young girl in years, Margaret

Garrison would gladly have sent the waiting gentlemen to the right about, for, though he was only 20, "Gov" Prime, as a junior at Columbia, had been ingeniously devoted to the little lady from the very first evening of the budding mustache, the 20 summers and the barely passed "exam" that wound up the junior year and entitled him to sit with the seniors when the great university opened its doors in October. Studies he hated, but tennis, polo, cricket, riding and dancing were things he loved and excelled in. Much of his boyhood had been spent at one of those healthy, hearty English schools where all that would cultivate physical and mental manhood was assiduously practiced, and all that would militate against them was as rigorously "tabooed."

At the coming of his twentieth birthday that summer his father had handed him his check of $5,000—the paternal expression of satisfaction that his boy had never smoked pipe, cigar or cigarette—and the same week "Gov" had carried off the blue ribbon with the racquet, and the second prize with the single sculls. It was during the "exams," the first week in June, when dropping in for five o'clock tea of some girls whom he had known for years, he was presented to this witching little creature whose name he didn't even "catch." "We met her way out on an army post in Wyoming when papa took us to California last year," was whispered to him, "and they entertained us so cordially, and of course we said if ever you come to New York you must be sure to let us know—and she did—but—" and there his informant paused, dubious. Other callers came in and it began to rain—a sudden, drenching shower, and the little stranger from the far west saw plainly enough that her hostesses, though presenting their friends after our cheery American fashion, were unable to show her further attention, and the newly presented—almost all women, said "so very pleased" but failed to look it, or otherwise to manifest their pleasure. She couldn't go in the rain. The butler had "phoned for a cab. She wouldn't sit there alone and neglected. She deliberately signaled Mr. Prime. "The ladies are all busy," she said, with a charmingly appealing smile, "but I know you can tell me. I have to dress for dinner at one o'clock, and must be at One Hundred and Tenth street at 7:30. How long will it take a carriage to drive me there? Oh, is that your society pin? Why, are you still in college? Why, I thought—"

That cab was 25 minutes coming, and when it came Mr. Prime went with it and her, whom he had not left an instant from the moment of her question. Moreover, he discovered she was nervous about taking that carriage drive all alone away up to One Hundred and Tenth street, yet what other way could a girl go in evening dress? He left her at her door with a reluctantly given permission to return in an hour and escort her to the distant home of her friends and enterainers. He drove to the Waldorf and had a light cigar with a half pint of brandy, devoured her with his eyes as they drove rapidly northward, went to a Harlem theater while she dined and forgot his name and was at the carriage door when she came forth to be driven home. Seven hours or less "had done the business," so far as Gouverneur Prime was concerned.

It was the boy's first wild infatuation—mad, unreasoning, absurd, yet intense as was ever that of Arthur Pen-dennis for the lovely Featheringay. Margaret Garrison had never seen or known the like of it. She had fascinated others for a time, had kindled love, passion and temporary devotion, but this—this was worship, and it was something so sweet to her jaded senses, something so rich and spontaneous that she gave herself up for a day or two to the delight of studying it. Here was a glorious young athlete whose eyes followed her every move and gesture, who hung about her in utter captivation, whose voice trembled and whose eyes implored, yet whose strong, brown, shapely hand never dared so much as touch hers, except when she extended it in greeting. He was to accompany his father and sister to Europe in a week, so what harm was there? He would forget all about it. He knew now she was married. He was presented to Nita, but had hardly a word and never a look for her when Margaret was near. He was dumb and miserable all the day they drove in the park and later dined at Delmonico's with Col. Frost. He was sick, even when mounted on his favorite English thoroughbred and scampering about the bridge path for peeps at the drives, when she was at the park again with that gray-haired reprobate, that money shark, Cashion—a Wall street broker black-balled at every decent club in New York. Why should she go with him? He had been most kind, she said, in the advice and aid he had given her in the investment of her little fortune. She told the lie with downcast eyes and cheeks that burned, for most of that little fortune was already frittered away, and Cashion's reports seemed to require many personal visits that had set tongues wagging at the hotels, so much frequented of the army; where she had taken a room until Nita should have been graduated and they could go to the seashore. She had promised to be at home to her boy adorer that very evening and to go with him to Daly's, and he had secured the seats four days ahead. Poor "Gov" had trotted swiftly home from the park, striving to comfort himself over his bath and irreproachable evening clothes that there, with her by his side, the wild jealousy of the day would vanish. Sharply on time he had sent up his card and listened, incredulous, to the reply: "Mrs. Garrison has not yet returned." He would wait, he said, and did wait, biting his nails, treading the floor, fuming in doubt and despair until nearly ten, when a carriage dashed up to the ladies' entrance and that vile Cashion handed her out, escorted her in and vanished. She came hurrying to her boy lover with both little hands outstretched, with a face deeply flushed and words of pleading and zistress rushing from her lips. "Indeed I could not help it, Gov," she cried. "I told him of my engagement and said we must not go so far, but away at the north end something happened, I don't know what, a wheel was bent, and the harness wreathed by too short a turn on a stone post at a corner. Something had to be repaired. They said it wouldn't take ten minutes, and he led me out and up to the piazza of that big hotel—you know, we saw it the day I drove with you—"

"He was a blackguard to take you there!" burst in Prime, the blood boiling in his veins. "Then we waited and waited and he went to hurry them, and then he came back and said they had found more serious damages—that it would take an hour, and meantime dinner had been ordered and was served. He had telephoned to you and the butler had answered all right."

"He's a double-dyed liar!" raved "Gov," furiously.

"And so what could I do, Gov? The dinner was delicious, but I couldn't eat a mouthful. (This time it wasn't Cashion who lied.) I was worrying about you, and—and—about myself, too. 'Gov,' it had set my heart on going with you. It was to be almost our last evening. Oh, if you only didn't have to sail Saturday, and could be here next week, you dear boy, you should have no cause for complaint. Won't you try to forgive me?"

And, actually, tears stood in her eyes, as again she held out both hands. They were the only people in the parlor, and in an instant, with quick, sudden, irresistible action, he had clasped and drawn her to his breast, and though she hid her face and struggled, passionate kisses were printed on her disheveled hair. It was the first time he had dared.

And then he did not sail Saturday. Prime, Sr., was held by most important business. They gave up the Saturday Canard and took the midweek White Star, and those four additional days riveted poor "Gov's" chains and left her well-nigh breathless with excitement. The strain had been intense. It was all she could do to make the boy try to behave in a rational way in the presence of others. When alone with her he raved. A fearful load was lifted from her spare little shoulders when the Tontonic sailed. Even Nita had worried and had seen her sister's worry. Then no sooner did "Gov" reach Europe than he began writing impassioned letters by every steamer, but that wasn't so bad. She had several magazine correspondents, some of whom wrote as often as Frank, but none of whom, to do her justice, got letters as often as he did, which, however, was saying little, for she hated writing. "Gov" was to have stayed abroad three months, piloting the pater and sister about the scenes so familiar to him, but they saw how nervous and unhappy he was. They knew he was writing constantly to some one. Mildred had long since divined that there was a girl at the bottom of it all, and longed and strove to find out who she was. Through the last of June and all through July he resolutely stood to his promise and did his best to be loving and brotherly to a loving and devoted sister and dutiful to a most indulgent father. But he grew white and worn and haggard, he who had been such a picture of rugged health, and, in her utter innocence and ignorance as to the being on whom her brother had lavished the wealth of his love, Mildred began to ask herself should she not urge her father to let "Gov" return to America. At last one sweet July evening, late in the month, the brother and sister were wandering along the lovely shore of Lucerne. He had been unusually fitful, restless and moody all day. No letter had reached him in over a fortnight, and he was miserably unhappy. They stopped at a grassy bank that ran down to the rippling water's edge, and she seated herself on a stone ledge, while in reckless abandonment he threw himself at full length on the dewy grass. Instantly the last doubt vanished. Bending over him, her soft hand caressing his hair, she whispered: "Gov, dear boy, is it so very hard? Would you like to go to her at once?"

And the boy bowed his face in her lap, twined his arms about her slender waist, and almost groaned aloud as he answered: "For pity's sake help me if you can, Mildred, I'm almost mad." Early in August the swiftest steamer of the line was splitting the Atlantic surge and driving hard for home, with "Gov" cursing her for a canal boat. The day after he reached New York he had traced and followed the White Sisters to West Point, and Margaret Garrison stared in mingled delight, triumph and dismay at the card in her hand; delight that she could show these exclusive Pointers that the heir to one of the oldest and best names in Gotham's Four Hundred was a slave to her beck and call, dismayed to think of the scene that might occur through his jealousy when he saw the devoted attentions she received from so many men—officers, civilians and cadets. Old Cashion came up now as regularly as Saturday night came around, and there were others. Margaret Garrison was more talked about than any woman in Orange county, yet who could report anything of her beyond that she was a universal favorite, and doted, walked, possibly flirted with a dozen different cavaliers every day of her life. There were some few people among her acemers, demure and most proper—even prudish—women, of whom, were the truth to be told, so little could not be said.

"Gov" Prime took the only kind of room to be had in the house, so full was it—a little seven by ten box on the office floor. He would have slept in the combi rather than leave her. He saw her go off to the hop looking radiant, glancing back over her shoulder and smiling sweetly at him. He rushed to his trunk, dragged out his evening clothes and stood at the wall looking on until the last note of the last dance—he, a noted German leader in the younger set and the best dancer of his years in Gotham. Not so much as a single spin had he, and he longed to show those tight-waisted, button-bellied fellows in gray and white how little they really knew about dancing, well as many of them appeared on the floor. His reward was tendered as the hop broke up. She came gliding to him with such witchery in her upraised face. "Now, sir, it is your turn. I couldn't give you a dance, for my card was made out days ago, but Mr. Lavrohe was glad enough to get rid of taking me home. He is daft about Nita, and of course she can't let him take her to more than one hop a week. Mr. Stanton is her escort to-night."

Then she placed her little hand on his arm, and drew herself to his side, and when he would have followed the others, going straight across the broad plain to the lights at the hotel, turned him to the left. "I'm going to take you all the way round, sir," she said, joyously. "Then we can be by ourselves at least ten minutes longer."

KISSED BY THE QUEEN.

Reminiscence of a Ragler Who Was Once Granted Distinguished Consideration.

"To be knight of the Thistle is a big honor, of course," remarked an old quartermaster sergeant, amidst a discussion among some military men at Chatham, "but I can claim a distinction: lots in front of that, or of kissing hands with the queen, as they say of the custom observed by cabinet ministers when taking over the seals of office."

"You're chuckling it, now," observed a staid sergeant first of the far north. "Well, the veteran non-com went on to explain, 'the good fortune which he told me was to be kissed by the queen,' an intimation which caused the lady party to gather round very close."

"You're having us, Jack," observed a credulous corporal, "and if you want the hatched say so, for the present he's fair enough."

"No," the distinguished soldier, as he claimed to be, replied. "It is you that's out of it, as you will say. You may have heard of my being the youngest soldier that took part in the Crime, and such fact secured for me a place among the survivors who were inspected by the queen after peace was proclaimed."

"When the wounded went by, some in chairs—"

"Quite so. Well, I was then a little flaxen-haired, red-checked youngster, small for my age, and I suppose contrasted a good deal with the worn veterans. When my turn came to pass her majesty asked how old I was, and on replying a little over 13, at the same time giving quite the best salute possible, the queen said: 'Dear little fellow,' and then gave me a kiss on the cheek. So you see how I came to receive a gracious distinction which has ever been able to lay claim to. That honor's mine alone."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Necessity.

A physician, returning from his daily rounds of visits, overheard two colored citizens conversing as they plodded homeward from their work.

"Is you gwine ter prayer meetin' dis evenin', Jim?" asked one of the pedestrians.

"Yas, indeed! I is dat. Is you?" replied the other.

"You bet I is!" said the first. "I tell you, I considers religion one uv necessary ebils!"—Memphis Scimitar.

Soldiers and Capitalists.

Records of the war department show that the whole amount paid by the government for its soldiery for all purposes, including bounty, commutations and pensions, since 1861 to June 30, 1899, is $2,658,000,000. Treasury records show that the whole amount paid to the creditors and bondholders since 1861 to June 30, 1899, was $5,768,000,000, or more than twice as much.—Chicago Chronicle.

Terrible Ordeal.

"If you'd been half an hour later," she said, "I don't know what I should have done."

"What happened?" he asked. "Why, Mrs. Gadding, next door, has been in here with such an extraordinary tale, which she made me promise I would never breathe to a living soul, that it has seemed as if I positively couldn't wait for you to come home to tell you about it."—Tri-Bits.

Ordained.

"There is no reason why a politician should not be honest."

"No; it's just one of those things that happens. There is no particular reason why grass shouldn't be black, but it's green, just the same."—Philadelphia North American.

MAY BE STORY OF THE MAINE.

Spanish Cipher Cablegram Found by an American Soldier in Manila.

"Blue tape" is the expression which might properly be applied to Spanish official circumlocution. C. Leland, a young man from Bismarck, N. D., came to Chicago a few days ago to join a regiment which he had heard was being recruited there for service in the Boer army. He carried a little bundle of blue paper which might reveal the secret of the Maine explosion in Havana harbor if the writing on it could be read. It purports to be a dispatch in cipher from a Spanish official in Havana to Gov. Gen. Augusti at Manila. It is dated February 18, 1898, and written in Spanish cipher code on a narrow ribbon of light blue paper, about 100 feet long. The paper is wound in a circular coil and makes a bunch six inches in diameter. There is nothing on the paper to establish its genuineness, says the Inter Ocean.

Young Leland got it from Charles Jackson, a soldier in a South Dakota regiment that served in the Philippines. When the American army took possession at Manila this paper, with a great many other official documents, it is said, was found in a safe in the governor general's office. Gen. Otis ordered them all burned, but Jackson rescued the cipher cablegram from the pile as a souvenir. He was killed soon afterward, but previous to that had mailed the paper to Leland.

A SUCCESSFUL FARMER.

Within three miles of the town going eastward is the farm of Mr. W. Creamer, one of the municipality's largest and most prosperous mixed farmers. Mr. Creamer came to this country in 1880 and settled on a portion of the land which comprises his present enormous farm of 1,280 acres. In common with many others of a similar period he experienced all the hardships and difficulties common to the absence of railway and market facilities. In no wise daunted, by energy, industry and indomitable will he has been able to surmount all obstacles and has achieved an unparalleled success, and is known throughout the district as one of its preeminent farmers. His operations extend over 1,280 acres, two sections (the thought alone of so much land makes the eastern farmer dizzy); 800 acres of this is broken and the remainder is excellent pasture land and wood. This harvest he took off a crop of 550 acres of wheat and 200 of other grains. Four hundred acres are plowed and ready for wheat next spring. Mr. Creamer is, as has been stated, a mixed farmer of no mean proportions, having at the present time 40 horses, 50 head of cattle and 50 pigs. The most modern farm buildings are found on his premises, the main building being a barn 35 feet square on a stone foundation containing stabling for 15 horses and a large number of cattle. The barn is stored with 20 loads of wheat only for feed and bales of hay; there is also a cutting box. Another building of large dimensions is the granary, in which after learning large quantities to wash he still has stored 3,000 bushels of wheat. A crushing machine is in the building. There are a number of lesser buildings, containing chicken houses, pig pens and cattle sheds. The farm residence is a handsome frame structure of ample proportions, in connection with it is a wood shed. The water supply is unexcelled; besides house supply there is a well in the stables and a never failing spring situated in a bluff, which never freezes. Surrounded by a thick bluff of poplars, extending in a semi circle to the west, north and east, the winter storms are broken and accumulation of snow unknown. Added to his farming operations, Mr. Creamer conducts a threshing outfit for the season. His success is only one instance of what can be accomplished in Western Canada.—Baldur (Man.) Gazette, Nov. 16th, 1899.

Thousands are going to Western Canada this year to take advantage of the free homestead laws that are being offered by the government.

Some folks think that honesty, in moderation, is the best policy.—Puck.

AMERICAN ENTERPRISE.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Pine Bluff, Ark., was telling his congregation of his travels in the Holy Land, and about his remarks with this incident, illustrating American enterprise: "When at 'Jacob's Well' he drew therefrom with his own hands a bucket of water; after doing so and looking at the big bucket, he found it was a large bucket with the name of 'Swift and Company' branded on same, which was the same as he had seen in Pine Bluff many times."—Kansas City Gazette.

Spring
Annually Says Take
Hood's
Sarsaparilla

In the spring these Pimples, Boils, Eruptions and General Bad Feelings indicate that there are poisons in the system. It needs a "thorough brushing," and the best brush is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which sweeps all humors out before it. This great medicine eradicates Scalds, eczema, Salt Rheum, neuralgia, the scall, which causes Itchiness, and in short, purifies the blood and thoroughly renovates the whole physical system.

"We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has given the best of satisfaction, especially as a spring medicine. It builds up the general system and gives new life." DWIGHT C. PARK, Whiteland, Indiana.

Tribute to Bourbon County.

Col. Breckinridge paid the following editorial tribute to Bourbon county in connection with the sketch of Paris and Bourbon, which appeared in the Lexington Herald last Sunday.

"In this issue is published the first of a series of articles in relation to the towns in the surrounding counties, this being some account of our neighboring city of Paris. We have sincere affection, as well as real admiration for Bourbon county and her people. Bourbon county is the richest agricultural county in the state; there is less waste land and more fertile land within her borders than in any other county. She is one of the older counties. The name she bears is a memorial of the gratitude felt to Louis XVI, and Paris also was named for the same. Her fertile lands and exquisite beauty attracted the early settlers, among them were Revolutionary veterans who brought with them their slaves and made new homes. Immediately after the close of the Revolutionary war Kentucky received some thousands of these soldiers who had land warrants for their services, and the Blue Grass counties were selected by the majority of these emigrants as their new homes. They were a superb race of men, and were wonderfully trained by the events just preceding and by the events of the war. They were far more than mere soldiers; they were thoughtful, conservative, intelligent, brave citizens. Never did a state have a nobler body of pioneers and founders.

The early history of Kentucky is far more valuable as a study in statesmanship and political science than as a thrilling romance. Bourbon obtained more than a fair share of these veterans; and as they founded schools, built churches, established courts of justice, constructed an orderly, law-abiding and stable community, they attracted other immigrants of like qualities. So that for more than a century this has been one of the most influential counties of Kentucky. Such men make a rich, prosperous and thrifty community. Such men and women build good homes, make good roads, have good stables, breed good stock; lay out good gardens, beautify their homes with flowers and trees, and adorn them with comfortable furniture, excellent pictures and many books. They educate their children and cultivate good manners and pleasant intercourse. Honesty, fair dealing, skill and intelligence produce the inevitable result. There is no county in Kentucky with a better—if as good—a system of county turnpikes; no county with more—if as many—attractive country homes; with as many comfortable carriages and handsome horses; none where ordinary intercourse is more cordial, courteous and gracious; none where the hospitality is more abundant, generous and delightful.

During all these years she has had among her citizens some of the leading men of the State; Judges, Senators, Representatives; citizens of wealth, of liberality and influence; and she has sent to other counties and states numerous sons who have made her honorable and beloved.

She has been an independent community; her people do their own thinking and their own voting. When there is war her sons volunteer with alacrity; and are the full equals of the best and bravest; there is hardly a battle field west of the Alleghenies where her blood was not shed for country and right. She loves strongly; she is not implacable in her hates. Sometimes her prejudices are high, but her sense of justice is also high. Her people are not angels or saints; some of them know the value of a stake and some have a profuse and abundant English vocabulary. They are flesh and blood; men and women who are natural, earnest, with the faults and virtues of a virile and intense race; stalwart, handsome, venturesome, courageous, reliable; loyal to friend and conviction; true to themselves and their word.

We know them well; we have practiced in her courts; we have been comrades in war with her sons; we have felt her friendship when we needed friends; we have crossed swords with some of her sons; we know her traditions; we have studied her past; we have heard some of her statesmen; we have delighted our eyes upon her exquisite and fertile landscapes. And on this April Sunday—very dear in our home on account of loving and precious associations—we lift our hat to Bourbon County and her thriving little city, and to her people, and pray God to bless them in basket and store; in home and heart.

GLUTEN FEED

For cattle, sheep and mules. This highly recommended feed contains twice as much fat and muscle forming material, pound for pound, as corn or bran. (So says the Agricultural Experiment Station.)

This feed is bulky and is the very thing to feed with shelled corn to prevent stock from eating corn too fast. We will sell it much cheaper than corn will cost. Put up in long sacks, 120 lbs. to a sack. Several cattle and mules feeders in this county are using this feed and are highly pleased with it.

GOVERNORSHIP CASE.

A Decision Expected From the Court of Appeals in a Few Days.

A Requisition From Gov. Mount, of Indiana, is Held Up by Democratic Gov. J. C. W. Beckham of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., April 5.—The April term of the Frankfort circuit court, and the grand jury working under it which will investigate the assassination of Wm. Goebel, began work. The court did not convene till 2 o'clock and the original panel drawn for grand jurors was exhausted before the required number qualified to serve was secured.

The Franklin county grand jury for the April term which will investigate the assassination of Wm. Goebel was summoned Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is composed of the following: Frank Stagg (R.), Geo. Brock (D.), Wm. Graham (D.), Leavelly Gaines (D.), W. B. George (R.), E. M. Featherstone (Anti-Goebel Dem.), Robert Satter (D.), Chas. Bridgford (Dem.), Geo. Bernback (D.), John Bels (D.), Bird Carter (D.), D. S. Cain (D.).

Judge Cantrill's charge to the grand jury was surprisingly brief and devoid of any thing of a sensational nature. He said in substance: "You know the horrible situation in this county better than I can depict it. I hope and believe this grand jury, realizing the responsibility resting upon it, will discharge its entire duty fearlessly, fairly and impartially, and if it does not mix or set of men can lay complaint at your door when your labors terminate. The officers of the court and the commonwealth's attorney will gladly render you any assistance you may need from them. Under the law you are entitled to six days in which to complete your labors, but if you are unable to complete your work in that time, I will gladly enter an order extending your sittings."

Frankfort, Ky., April 4.—An incident occurred Tuesday which is of interest in view of the report from Indianapolis that Gov. Mount would not recognize a requisition from Democratic Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky, and the presence at the Indiana capital of ex-Secretary of State Charles Folsom, for whom a warrant is out, changing completely in the Goebel case. A requisition made by Gov. Mount on the "governor of Kentucky" for the return of Indiana of Rudolph Gossman, a prisoner in the penitentiary here whose term expires Wednesday, was presented to Gov. Beckham Tuesday morning after it had been first presented at republican headquarters and honor.

The prison officials declined to recognize Taylor's order. Upon receiving the papers Gov. Beckham sent the following telegram to the Indiana executive:

Gov. James A. Mount, Indianapolis, Ind.:—A requisition from you for the arrest of one Gossman, wanted in Floyd county, Indiana, has been presented to me. I will gladly honor it if you will first assure me that any requisition issued by me as governor of Kentucky upon you will also be honored. This understanding is deemed because of certain expressions attributed to you in the press lately.

J. C. W. BECKHAM.

The grand jury is now investigating the assassination of Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., April 5.—The judges of the court of appeals held a full bench session at which the appeal from the decision from the judges of the circuit court over the office of governor and lieutenant governor were considered. A decision is expected next Monday.

The grand jury issued subpoenas for several witnesses who will testify in regard to the Goebel assassination. Among them are William Pat. McDonald, state legislator and former justice of the peace.

The Franklin county grand jury in its investigation of the Goebel assassination has gotten no farther than the determination of the nature of Mr. Goebel's wound and the direction from which the shot came. Testimony relating to the alleged conspiracy may be reached Wednesday.

Louisville, Ky., April 5.—The likelihood of a clash between the rival state administrations before a final decision of the contest cases by the courts is believed to be small. While every move of the respective military establishments gives rise to a flood of rumors, the men in control of these movements, in the interest of public order and of the cause they represent, will not allow matters to take a serious turn if they can prevent it. A decision from the court of appeals is expected within a few days, but thirty days must elapse after the decision is rendered before the mandate of the court is issued. Because of this fact and the prospective aspect to the United States supreme court if the republicans are given a final settlement is still far off.

Defeated in the House.

The Missouri, Ia., April 4.—The five-year limit bill prohibiting the establishment of a saloon within five miles of any town in the state in which was passed a state educational institution, which passed the senate, was defeated in the house Tuesday.

Reported Lying.

Frankfort, Ky., April 4.—It is reported here that Allen Brooks, the Negro who assaulted Mrs. P. W. Hart, a white woman, near Mount Vernon, was arrested near Louisville.

NOT A BOER LEADER.

War Department Officials Do Not Believe the Story About Capt. Carl Reichmann.

Washington, April 4.—War department officials do not believe the story that comes from South Africa to the effect that Capt. Carl Reichmann, 17th infantry, was one of the leaders of the Boers at the last fight between the Boers and the English at the Bloemfontein water works. Adj. Gen. Corbin would not even discuss the possibility of the story being true.

Reichmann's brother officers, men who knew him well, say that it is very probable that Reichmann occupied some conspicuous point of vantage from which to view the fight, and his discovery in uniform by the British was the basis for the assumption that he was one of the Boer leaders. Reichmann was selected by Gen. Miles personally to accompany the Boer forces during the war as an observer for the United States army. The army was already represented on the British side by Capt. Sloenn, and in the interest of military science it was deemed essential that an accurate idea should be had of the Boer method of warfare, in order that conclusions might be drawn that would be useful to the United States army.

Reichmann ranks high as a scientific soldier, having been detailed with success to observe the grand maneuvers of the German army as a representative of the United States army. His colleagues in Washington declare that the officer has too much common sense to be led into a violation of his orders in the manner described; for if he actually threw in his lot with the Boers in attacking the British, he violated the rules of war and committed a very grave offense under the army regulations.

STRIKE IN PORTO RICO.

Carpenters at Work on a Pier at San Juan Compelled by a Mob to Quit Work.

San Juan de Porto Rico, April 4.—A crowd of about 500 persons gathered at a pier under construction by the E. B. Jenks Co., of New York, intimidated the native carpenters and forced 35 of them to quit work. The present rate of wages is $1.50 for ten hours labor. The leaders of the movement demanded an eight hour day. At noon a mob of over 10,000 people assembled and attacked the St. Thomas laborers. There were 150 policemen on duty but they made no attempt to disperse the crowd and a company of infantry was called out to preserve order. The crowd was not violent beyond beating a few men.

The agitators were headed by Santiago Iglesias, late delegate to the labor convention at New York. The laborers from St. Thomas refused to return to work, being afraid of the attacks after hours. The workmen who were satisfied and were willing to work were forced out by the so-called union laborers with the result that no natives will be engaged. The company has cabled to the United States for 25 carpenters, who will arrive on the next steamer. The pier is now protected by soldiers.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

Russian Troops Are Being Mobilized and All Dispatches Are Carefully Censored.

Berlin, April 4.—The Koehische Zeitung, a semi-official organ, publishes alarming reports regarding the busy war preparations which Russia is making on land and on sea.

The Zeitung announces that the czar will go to Moscow Wednesday to be present at a military council.

All dispatches relating to the mobilization of troops are carefully censored before they are given to the press.

Officers who have applied for leave of absence have been informed that all such requests will be denied for the present.

Soldiers for Scavengers.

Paris, April 4.—Although it is less than a fortnight from the day of the opening of the exposition the grounds are covered with fragments of wood, stones and other rubbish and the authorities have lighted upon a novel scavenging scheme. The minister of war is to send 10,000 soldiers who are being drilled for the purpose to sweep like an army through the grounds and buildings April 12, for the purpose of clearing up all the debris.

Fitzsimmons and Rubin to Fight.

New York, April 4.—Bob Fitzsimmons and Gus Rubin were matched to fight 25 rounds on a date to be selected later. Both men deposited a $1,000 forfeit. The fight will take place before the West Chester Athletic club.

Mrs. McKinley Greatly Improved.

Washington, April 4.—Mrs. McKinley, who has been confined to her room for some time on account of an attack of la grippe, is greatly improved, and for the first time in the last week or more was able to take a drive with the president.

Siamese Minister Coming.

London, April 4.—M. Phya Praditti, Siamese minister to Great Britain and the United States, left London en route for Washington to present his credentials to President McKinley. He will sail for New York by the White Star steamship Oceanic.

Germany Denies It.

Berlin, April 4.—Reports from Washington intimating that Germany was investigating Turkey to take unfriendly action against American interests are emphatically denied by the foreign office.

THE FIRST BABY.

Its Coming Is Looked Forward to
With Both Joy and Fear and Its Safe Arrival Is Gaiety With Pride and Delight by All.

The arrival of the first baby in the household is the happiest and most important event of married life. The young wife who is to become a mother delights to think of the happiness in store for her when the little one shall nestle upon her breast and latterly she shall hear it lisp the sweet and holy name, "mother." But her happy anticipation quickly vanishes when she realizes the terrible pain and suffering through which she must pass while bringing the little one into the world. An indescribable fear of the danger attendant upon the ordeal soon dissipates her joyfulness.

Thousands of women have learned by experience that there is absolutely no necessity for the sufferings which attend child-birth; they know that by the use of "Mother's Friend"—a scientific liniment—for a few weeks before the trying hour, expectant mothers can so prepare themselves for the final hour that the pain and suffering of the dreaded event are entirely obviated and it is safely passed through with comparatively little discomfort.

All women are interested, and especially expectant mothers who for the first time have to undergo this trial, in such a remedy; for they know the pain and suffering, to say nothing of the danger, which is in store for them. "Mother's Friend" is woman's greatest blessing, for it takes her safely through the arduous ordeal of her life. Every woman should be glad to read the little book "Before Baby Is Born," which contains information of great value to all. It will be sent free to any one who sends their address to The Bradford Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Persons who want engraved cards or invitations of any description are invited to call at THE BOURBON NEWS office and look at the very latest styles in these lines. Prices as low as Cincinnati, Louisville, Philadelphia or New York houses.

CANCER Cannot be Cut Out or Removed with Plasters

Surgical operations and flesh destroying plasters are useless, painful and dangerous, and besides, never cure Cancer. Do not think how often a cancerous sore is removed, another comes at or near the same point, and always in a worse form. Do not think how conclusively that Cancer is a blood disease, and that it is folly to attempt to cure this deep-seated, dangerous disease by cutting or burning out the sore, which, after all, is only an outward sign of the disease—a place of exit for the poison.

Cancer runs in families through many generations, and those whose ancestors have been afflicted with it are liable at any time to be afflicted with the deadly malady.

Only Blood Diseases can be Transmitted from One Generation to Another

—Further proof that Cancer is a disease of the blood. To cure a blood disease like this you must cure the entire blood system—remove every trace of the poison. Nothing cures Cancer effectually and permanently but S. S. S.

S. S. S. enters the circulation, searches out and removes all taint, and stops the formation of cancerous cells. No mere tonic or ordinary blood medicine can do this. S. S. S. goes down to the very roots of the disease, and forces out the deadly poison, allowing the sore to heal naturally and permanently. S. S. S. at the same time purifies the blood and builds up the general health.

A little pimple, a harmless looking wart or mole, a lump in the breast, a cut or bruise that refuses to heal under ordinary treatment, should all be looked upon with suspicion, as this is often the beginning of a bad form of cancer.

Mrs. Sarah M. Keeling, of Windsor Ave., Bristol, Tenn., writes: "I am 47 years old, and for three years had suffered with a severe form of Cancer on my jaw, which the doctors in this city said was incurable, and that I could not live more than six months. I accepted their statement as true, and had given up all hope of ever being well again, when my druggist, knowing of my condition, recommended S. S. S. After taking a few bottles the sore began to heal, much to the surprise of the physicians, and in a short time made a complete cure. I have gained in flesh, my appetite is splendid, sleep is refreshing—in fact, am enjoying perfect health."

Our medical department is in charge of physicians of long experience, who are especially skilled in treating Cancer and other blood diseases. Write for any advice or information wanted, we make no charge whatever for this service. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

Question Answered

Y-s August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers, and grandmothers, never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-ly
